

THE CHAMELEON

A chameleon is a lizard.

There are 100 different species of chameleons.

Many chameleons live in Madagascar.

They live also in Africa, Asia and Europe.

It can change its skin colour.

A chameleon can turn pink, brown, blue, red, orange, green, black and yellow.

It change colors to:

- match the surroundings as a camouflage
- physical condition
- light exposure
- efforts to attract a mate.

Chameleons have a poor sense of smell and are almost deaf.

They have a very good vision.